Mander Portman Woodward was founded in 1973 and is one of the country's best known independent colleges. Situated in the heart of South Kensington, MPW is fully co-educational and accepts about 600 students each year for GCSE and A level courses. We offer a broad range of courses and have a tradition of expertise in intensive, exam-oriented tuition. It is this expertise which forms the basis of our Easter revision courses.

Why do A level Revision Courses?

Summer examinations are of pivotal importance for lower-sixth as well as upper-sixth students. For lower-sixth students, regardless of whether the examinations are internal or external, their results will have considerable influence on their UCAS references and predicted grades. For upper-sixth students, their results will determine their university and career prospects. As the A level system is now fully reformed, there are no further legacy resit opportunities and all subjects will be assessed by the new linear examinations.

Tuition

Our tutors are all highly qualified graduates with considerable teaching experience. Many are examiners and are therefore attuned to the requirements and approaches demanded by the various examining boards.

The depth of content of A level syllabuses is such that it would be impractical to attempt an exhaustive coverage of any one specification in just five days. The aims of our courses are to cultivate a high level of understanding of core topic areas, to show students how to revise effectively and to foster good examination technique.

Syllabus content and the style of examination questions differ quite markedly from one board to another. Consequently, it is inappropriate in most cases for students who are being prepared for different boards to be taught together in the same group. We therefore ensure that our A level courses are both board- and syllabus-specific, with the exception of History and Literature courses, which are topic- or text-specific. In addition, we send out a pre-course questionnaire in which students are asked to identify their particular areas of concern.

Small classes are essential in order to provide the close attention which each student requires. All groups are limited to an absolute maximum of nine students, although the average is usually six or seven.

Course Structure

The precise content and the number of hours of tuition provided for each subject are given in the course outlines booklet. Courses will focus on advanced information provided by exam boards in each subject and adjustments as specified by Ofqual for 2022 exams.

40-hour courses for A level subjects operate from 9.00 am to 6.00 pm Monday to Friday with an hour for lunch. There are eight hours of tuition each day including invigilated exam practice and breaks.

20-hour courses for Year 12 students operate either mornings or afternoons Monday to Friday with four hours of tuition each day including invigilated exam practice and breaks.

Shorter, one-day and half-day courses are available in certain humanities subjects and modern foreign languages.

Feedback

At the end of the 20- and 40-hour courses, students are given a report in each subject, outlining areas of strength and weakness and providing specific suggestions for improvement. Students also receive a revision pack, containing further revision advice and self-assessment questions, enabling them to build on the progress made during the course.

In order to book a place, the person responsible for fees should complete and return the registration form along with the fees for the course.
